Proclamation

Greetings from Eric & Katja, Baron and Baroness of Thescorre.

At last, the weather has turned warm! Fighting and fencing will be moving outside for the duration of the summer, archery and thrown weapons are in full swing, and the Pennsic War is fast upon us. Thescorre will again muster her forces to fight for the Kingdom of Aethelmearc and her allies.

Once again, we are asking all of our martial combatants - fighters, fencers, archers, and throwers -- who will be representing Thescorre and Aethelmearc at Pennsic to muster on the battlefield at Pax Interruptus. If you have a blue baldric from last year, bring it along and display it; if you don't have one yet, we'll have them to distribute.

This year we have made an alliance with the Shire of Hartstone to combine our heavy weapons units at Pennsic, under the command of Sir Wulfstan. As part of this alliance we have committed not only our fighters but also the support of our noncombatants at Pennsic. Subsequently, we are looking for volunteers for the following:

- People to help provide drinks, snacks and assistance to the fighters of the unit on the battlefield. Supporters may also march in procession with the fighters to the battlefield (battles and days TBD).
- Drummers, singers, or other musicians to provide accompaniment in the battlefield processions.
- Threadworkers to help make several heraldic items for the martial unit -- spear pennants, possibly a war banner or some fighter tabards.

- We are also asking if anyone can volunteer a sunshade that we can set up on the battlefield for the fighting unit.

If you are interested in helping out with any of the above please email Baron Eric: de_labarre@yahoo.com (or baron@thescore.org).

7 Pearls Rattan & Rapier Tournaments

The joy and enthusiasm with which Decimus represented the barony at the 7 Pearls Rattan Tourney at Æthelmearc War Practice was unmistakable – he grinned after every bout like a child in a candy store! We thank him most happily for his gleeful participation.

Since Yasmina was injured and unable to represent the barony this year's 7 Pearls Rapier Tourney, Eric stood in her place. He thoroughly enjoyed the tourney! We thank Yasmina for representing the barony so well in this annual tourney for the past three years.

We thank Fridrikr for his creative heraldry during the tournaments, and we also thank Fauna, Mekk, Vettius, Dehka, and Ye Jian for their retaining during kingdom Court – the former two especially for their help setting up and breaking down the Thescore thrones. We also thank Sadira, Orianna, and Bryn for yummy snacks before Court. Vivant to all!

Baronial Champs

Doggies!!!!!!!!!!!!

Okay, yes, there were many other nifty things to enjoy at Champ, but having lots of furred friends to pet and romp with was definitely a highlight of the day. We were blessed with excellent weather, a great site, and welcoming hosts. Vivant, Tom and Diane!

The archery shoot in the woods was a hoot (“Death to the brownies!”), the thrown weapons range was a fun challenge (“The rats are 10 points, the pie is minus five – don’t shoot the pie!”), and the rapier competition was joyful. The A&S competition boasted so many brilliant entries: beautiful tablet weavings, a lovely charcoal, great songs & poems, and two Mongol hats! Being able to sample pies of every kind until totally stuffed was definitely a great dinner. Listening to songs and stories and watching dancing around the firepit was the perfect end to the day!

We thank our marshals and past champions for organizing such fun and fair competitions for our new baronial champions: Cedric, Athos, Yasmina, Ye Jian, Dehka, Eldjarn, and Heiko. Thanks very kindly for allowing us to participate in the competitions alongside our champions.

We praise all who entered the competitions and congratulate our new champions – Sigvaldi, Eldjarn, Fridrikr, Vettius, and Meadhbh – who join continuing champions Decimus and Gabriel. We also cheer Carlo, who we realized must be recognized as Thescore’s court jester!

We thank all the staff for a great event – Siggy, Kadlin, Katrina, Bryn, Emily, Collette, Fridrikr. As always, we gratefully thank the Thescorre Scriptorium (mostly Collette this time) for providing lovely scrolls for the winners.

Finally, we thank our ever-talented drummers for serenading us into Court – Carlo, Juliana, Dubheasa, and Eldjarn – and our retainers – Dehka, Ye Jian, Marcus, Meadhbh, Moor, and Fauna. Thank you for making Court possible!

We look forward to Pax... in just four weeks? Eek!

Eric & Katja

FOR THE KIDS BY SORCHA

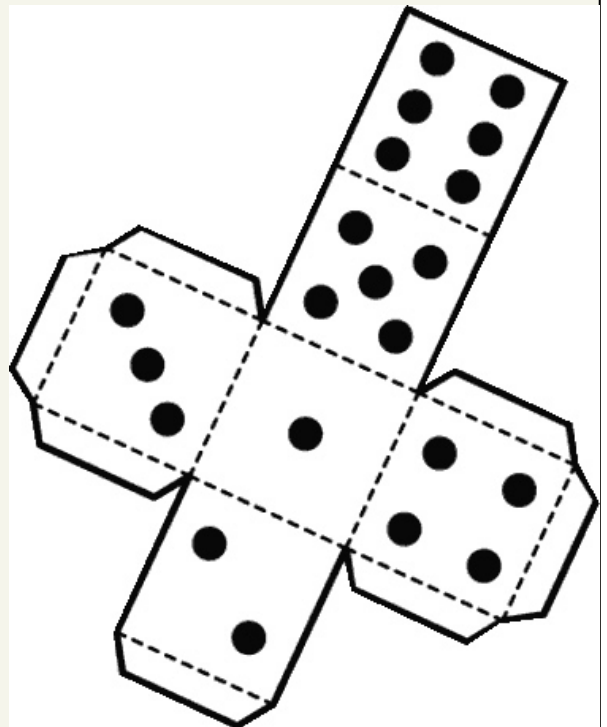

There are many medieval games that require dice. Today we will learn how to make your own dice out of simple wooden blocks that can be purchased at most craft stores.

For the younger children, using a Q-tip and a plate of paint, dip the tip in the paint and dot the designs on the blocks following the design on the paper pattern below.

For the older children using a safety pin, lightly poke the tip in and rotate it around creating the divot for the dot, then take a fine tip paintbrush and dot in the black paint.

When finished use clear paint to seal the dice and allow to dry completely.

You can also print up and tape together the paper dice from the pattern to the right.

Baronial Champs

“Everything is going well, all we have to do at this point is finalize the schedule,” Sigvaldi reported regarding the event this coming weekend. Siggy said he still needed a few pavilions for changing, troll, court, etc.; Yasmina, Eldjarn, and Katja offered some. Apparently, Fridrikr has amnesia and forgot he volunteered to be tollner... Bryn reported there will be extra Cooks Guild meetings this week to prepare for lunch. We still need more pies for dinner, Collette said, so contact her with the ingredients ASAP, please. They don’t have to be period recipes, but those are welcome. Siggy added that if anyone needs any barony equipment from Steffan's basement, tell him now. He reminded everyone that staff is welcome to camp Friday night, while Saturday is open for camping for everyone.

Peregrine said that the event announcement was published in the Fewmet, so it is a legal event even though it was not printed in the AEstel; she confirmed this with Caryl. She offered to forward the event announcement to the AE Yahoo list in case gentles out of area want to attend. She added that she'd talked to Teresa about the snafu with submitting the event announcement to the AEstel; she reported that anyone who uses the online event form must not leave any blank spaces (enter "N/A") or it may not submit correctly.

Signs

Diane brought some samples of the bumper stickers she and Tom print, which are made of a plasticized cardboard called Flexacore. They hold up very well to wear and tear, she explained. We need to know how many the barony would like, what size they should be, if we need road signs more urgently than stickers, etc., she asked.

Peregrine replied that we needed the signs more urgently and she had checked with Steffan, who said we need 4 to 5 new double sided sandwich-style road signs, and he suggests that they be shorter than the current ones so they will fit in more cars more easily. He advised not creating ones that stick in the ground, since we don't always have soft ground available where we need to place the signs. He had requested $50 plywood, 2x2s for legs, some hinges, and chain. Diane said that Tom can do sandwich signs. Steffan had also asked for the new signs to have movable arrows; some of the existing ones have these, while others have ones stuck on with duct tape. Diane said Tom could make them with Velcro, but Eldjarn warned that a prankster could change the direction too easily.

Yasmina suggested Tom and Diane check out the current barony signs this weekend when we set them up for the event at their home. Fridrikr moved that we draw up a spec sheet for the expected cost of the signs in the next two weeks. Those present approved the decision 21-0-2.

Pax

Plans are also going well with Pax, Eldjarn said. He'll start asking for help after this weekend, such as for food, trolls, and pavilions.

Pennsic

The deadline for preregistration is June 15, Mick reminded everyone. We have about 15 to 16 gentles signed up for the barony encampment, including some new people, so we're bigger this year than in several past.

Phelan had some ideas for the Thescorre encampment, including sprucing up the gate, using his sink and building a shower. He drew his design on the nearby chalkboard: a door on a frame that could be hung on the current gate with rope and grommets, decorated with a large raven, and constructed of fabric so it was light and easy to transport. With the help of the Threadworkers or as a social meeting project, he said, it could be done in time for Pennsic. After some more discussion, those voted to support Phelan's idea, pending him providing a quote of the materials needed and cost by the next social meeting, and approved the idea 23-0-2.

Phelan and Maired offered the encampment the use of their own camp kitchen this year, which includes a 60,000-BTU stove, a six-foot table, and a pavilion. He agreed to take the discussion offline so those staying in the encampment could consolidate needed equipment.

There was extensive discussion on building a baronial shower, with Phelan suggesting he could buy a small cabana (as the outside of the shower) for $20 on Craigslist. Gentles debated heating options -- inline water heaters, solar, and propane -- with most agreeing that Coleman heaters not being a good choice. Phelan offered to provide an estimate for that project by the social meeting as well. There was some discussion about whether to pay for the projects and maintenance (such as propane) fully out of barony funds (Fridrikr's idea) or whether the maintenance should come out of a camp fee from those who live in the encampment (Phelan).

As someone who is often exhausted and in pain from fibromyalgia, Carlo said, anything that makes Pennsic more comfortable is really appreciated!

Katja agreed that improvements to the barony encampment to make it more comfortable and impressive is A Very Good Thing. She asked, however, that if the barony create additional equipment and amenities the barony please consider renting a storage unit for such shower, gate, kitchen, etc. Transporting the baronial encampment materials has been the baron & baroness's responsibility, she said, and it's already at the point where it's too much stuff for a normal SCAdian couple with an SUV or minivan to carry along with their normal camping stuff.

AEthelmarc Curia Report

Fridrikr reported that the age of eligibility for entering Crown is now 18 years of age. (It was previous 21.) "Ah," Katja quipped. "So, now you can vote, fight for your country and your Crown, but you still can't drink."

Proposed Baronial Policy Changes

Peregrine summarized the change she proposes for the July Baronial Curia, which would rewrite what happens in an emergency situation where a baronial officer has to step down. Right now, she said, the deputy takes over the office until the seneschale finds a replacement officer. In essence, she said, the contingency officer isn't allowed to keep the office if he or she wants to. So, she proposes changing the policy so a deputy may fulfill the term or the seneschale may seek a new officer.

Officer Reports

Webministers: "We have a website, it works," Donal said, adding he and Sorcha will be asking for a reimbursement check to keep our domain hosting.

Chronicler: We need articles for Fewmet, please, Sorcha announced. One idea, she suggested, was writing briefly about your first event.

Chirurgeon: The website is up, so please tell me what you think of it, Phillipe asked. He thanked Carlo for helping to create the website. He also praised Fauna for her chirogeonate work at Crown and added he hopes to get her warranted soon.

Herald: Fridrikr commented that he's been a herald for 23 years. If you have a device or name outstanding, please write to him. He sent forms after last meeting for Vettius and Pdraig since he could not find the old forms in the herald file. Both names will work, he said, they're documented. If anyone else has a name submission, Fridrikr will be happy to work on it. He also has badges submissions for Phelan and Maired. He also kicked himself for forgetting to herald for the baron and baroness at AE War Practice when he was attending the Khan. Katja laughed and told him not to worry, she and Eric kicked themselves for remembering to ask him to herald the 7 Pearls Rapier tourney but completely forgetting to ask him to herald the 7 Pearls Rattan tourney one hour earlier at the event...

Thrown Weapons: Practice is at my house, Athos said. Not many people are showing up, so please come and have fun, he has loaner gear. Since Sundays are pretty busy, he suggested having practice on Thursday or Friday nights.

Exchequer: We have $2,171.77 in checking and $3,159.76 in savings, Alina reported.

MOL: Bronwyn is available to help with the tournaments this weekend.

Rapier: Fencing is happening more often than not, Yasmina said. Practice will likely move to an alternative night for practice for summer (likely Thursday) since several people want to play both heavy and light weapons. She added she hopes someone else step up as rapier marshal in July since the inflamed tendon in her wrist has been bothering her since January.

Regarding the drop tester request, she said she plans to request the $21 needed to buy just the tip, then she'll get the pipe and the rest of the materials needed from a hardware store to build a barony drop tester. That way, she added, we'll have one when Eric steps down from the regional marshal-late job and we no longer have a drop tester living in the barony.

There are now two loaner hoods, and Orianna has a third almost done. The Threadworkers may work on other ones. Before Sam was born, Siggy had created a beta gorget; he said he plans to test it this weekend at the event. Phillipe is currently a marshal in training, she added.

Rattan: We have fighting practice on Mondays, Vettius said. There is nothing substantial to report, other than one of his Legio got authorized at War Practice.

Chatelaine: Siggy said he is still getting emails from folks who are interested in joining and he is responding as best as he can with a newborn in the house. Sorcha was recently contacted by a college professor who would like us to come talk to his class on neo-medievalism, he added.

Dubheasa thanked everyone who participated in the recent charitable demo for Alternatives for Battered Women. She said the organizers were all very impressed and wanted our contact information for future demos. Katja said she wished they'd been able to dance more medieval dances, but was happy they were able to do some Middle Eastern dancing.

Siggy commented that he is starting to plan the next newcomers night (possibly June), and has several offers from different gentles to host it this time. (He wants to have three to four newcomer nights a year.) The last one was a big hit -- we picked up several new people, including one of the lunch cooks for this weekend's event!

A&S: Kadlin reminded everyone that the next social meeting will be the annual pre-Pennsic fabric and garb swap. Katja offered to bring her Turkish coat pattern, which Maired wanted to trace, and encouraged others to bring patterns for others to trace.

Due to the recent discussion on the Thescorre Yahoo list regarding chocolate milk at Coopers Lake, Caradawc brought some Bourne Dairy chocolate milk for everyone to sample. There was much rejoicing...

Archery: Speaking for Cedric, Peregrine said there won't be any practice this Sunday due to the event and the holiday, but practice has been very well attended lately!

Scribal: We are meeting tomorrow at Roberta's, Collette said, to work on the champions' scrolls for the event.

Seneschale: Four offices expire in July, Peregrine announced: steward, seneschale, thrown weapons, and rapier marshal. She is accepting officer bids.

She added that the Center is closed next Monday for Memorial Day, but practices can occur outside on the soccer field.

Court & Country Dancing: We will have a guest from An Tir next practice! There was much lamentation about the nearby ice cream shop not being open on Mondays or past 9 p.m., which is deeply inconvenient to those of us attending various practices at the recreation center.

Dance & Drum: We have a new drummer, Carlo said.

Baron & Baroness: Katja read a proclamation written by Eric: Unto the Barony of Thescorre do Baron Eric and Baroness Katja send fond greetings.

Again the seasons turn, the lilacs blossom, the birds sing, and the horns of war are heard upon the horizon. Our rulers Khalek Khan and Branwyn Khatun have called their banners for the forthcoming war, and Thescorre must prepare to answer that call.

Once again We summon our warriors of all martial disciplines, who intend to stand with Thescorre and Aethelmearc at the Pennsic War, to muster upon the battlefield at the Pax Interruptus event, on Saturday June 28th (time TBD) for inspection and recognition.

Eric & Katja

She added that they're willing to host a Saturday sewing circle after Pax so that we can all work on our Pennsic garb projects.

Congratulations Kadlin & Siggy on the birth of Samuel, and Bea & Dom on the birth of Max! Congratulations to Vettius & Dehka on their engagement!

When Fridrikr urged everyone to check out the new "frog cards," Katja agreed that, yes, there is a photo of Chain-mail Bob. (She had asked Rufina to snap of photo of him at Ice Dragon.)

T H E R U N H E N T - F R I D R I K R T O M A S S O N

Did you ever read one of the poems based on Old Icelandic form & wonder whatever happened to rhyme schemes? You know, those nice sound-alike words that end lines of your most memorable poems? That nice "a,a,b,b,c,c" scheme that your 7th grade English teacher drilled into your skulls?

Well, in Old Icelandic & eddaic poetry, end rhyme scheme is seldom considered necessary. Indeed, in drottkeitt, or Court Poetry, end rhyme is never used purposefully. However, there is a form of poetry common to Iceland that does use end rhyme, runhent. In The Structure of Old Norse Drottkvætt Poetry, Kari Ellen Gade says, "Not until the end of the tenth century, in Egil's [Skallagrimsson] "Hoflauðsen" [Head-Ransom] does end rhyme play a constitutive part in skaldic metrics. This new meter, runhent, which consists of lines with four syllables dispenses with the internal rhymes altogether and replaces it with end rhymes..... It is clear that runhent meter represented a bold break with the established norms for the composition of skaldic poetry, and that this innovation was most likely the result of foreign [most likely English or Irish] influence." (Gade: 10)

In the Háttatal, his work on poetic form, Snorri Sturlusson identifies several different variants of the runhent. These include a variety of line lengths, ranging from the standard four out to seven or eight, and a variety of rhymes schemes. In Snorri's runhent variants, you can find rhymed couplets (2 lines), quadruplets (4 lines) or octets (8 lines). He gives the schemes a variety of names. Following are a few examples from the Háttatal (all from <http://www.vsnrweb-publications.org.uk/Edda-3.pdf>):

Fluttak fræði
*of frama græði (tunga tæði)
með tolu ræði;
stef skal stæra
stilli Mæra (hróðr dugir hræra)
ok honum færa.

In this verse, the rhyme scheme is in four line segments. In the next example, Snorri uses the same rhyme to end all eight lines in the form he calls runhendir:

Naðrs gnapa ógn alla,
eyðir baugvalla,
hlunns of hástalla
hestar svanfjalla;
orms er glatt galla
með gumna spjalla;
jarl fremr sveit snjalla,
slíkt má skorung kalla.

One final example shows the form Snorri calls mintz runhenda which uses rhymed couplets:

Slíkt er svá, siklingr á (old fless ann)
*orðróm flann;
jarla er
austan ver
skatna skýrstr Skúli dýrstr.

Moving away from the poetic form, I'd like to address the subject matter of runhent meter. In many Old Norse poems, the poet praises a particular king or nobleman. Another type is the "shield poem." Turville-Peter, in Scaldic Poetry, says, "Some of the most striking poems are those based on pictures painted on a shield or wainscot and probably carved in relief. Bragi the Old and Þjólðólfur of Hvin give fine examples of shield poems.... The picture poems which I have mentioned are rather more than plain descriptions. The poet sees more than could have been depicted on the shield or wainscot; he enlarges the myths which inspired the artist..." (Turville-Peter: xvii)

Perhaps the most famous runhent is the Hoflauðsen (Head-Ransom) by Egil Skallagrímsson. Reputedly written in one night, it praises King Eric. According to Lee Hollander, in The Skalds, it is the first example of runhent meter (Hollander: 66-67). A verse, with Hollander's translation, follows:

Vestr fór ek of ver,
en ek Viðris ber
munstrandar mar.
Svá er mitt of far.
Drók eik á flot
við ísa brot.
Hlóð ek mærdar hlut
míns knarrar skut.

(<http://www.home.no/norron-mytologi/sgndok/kvad/hofud.htm>)

I sailed to the West and of Odin's breast bear I the sea
thus is't with me
I put out to float
at ice-break, my boat frighted with load of lofty ode.

(Hollander: 68).

In the runhent meter poem that I've written, I take considerable freedom with the line length, but not with the rhyme schemes. As you'll see, I use rhymed couplets, quadruplets, and octets. The poem is a shield poem, describing a legendary occurrence in the history of Aethelmarc (somewhere around Pennsic 14), the "charge of the half-ton of angry pot roast", a line composed of Boris Dragon's Bane, Haakon Oaktall, Morguhn Sheridan, and Wilfred Altmarker, who together weighed in excess of 1,000 pounds (hence the nickname). They actually did break the Calontir shield-wall at the bridge battle by themselves.

The Four at the Bridge

At Coopers pond we set our scene
On field & hill & great ravine battles fought twixt warring foes dragons come & tigers go dwarves & elves, & aetheling men fight on hillsides, then in fen
a bridge they near but do not cross
Into the fray their troops Kings toss

four heroes joined the martial throng dancing to valkrie's gory song Brave Boris, Haakon's kin with Oak tree tall, then thin
Green Morguhn, duke soon knight
Young Willem, Fridriks wight
To fight at Pennsic war
A bridge to bathe in gore

To battle dwarvelords here who rose from Calontir
Our four men formed a host a half-tonne of pot roast fiercesome fighters four who out-fought many score whom many feared and yet into the fray they did not get

Thru battle's din they stood no action turned the mood neath sun's harsh stare they broiled to pot roast rare
they glared at Calon herd who at our heroes jeered til thrice-king angry roared Zounds! His Grace was bored!

On three, charge! Morguhn said
On three, Duke Morguhn lead!
thru Calin wall they sped
dwarves fell neath Willem's tread
Haakon's spear detached a head
Boris laid the dead to bed
Surly sword-elves backward fled Whiles Norns snipped off ghastly threads bodies from bridgehead flew of hammer-dwarves & crew Boris, Hakkon, Willem plied their trade to gain brave Morguhn's side then marshall's whistle shrilled slaughter stopped to count the kill whence from the corpse pile fell came chortling straight from hell!

thru that pile our heroes tore by belts and heads they grabbed the corse to find His grace's missing head which still gave forth its cry of dread
"Out Dead Things!," marshalls cried wakened corpses move aside but Yngvar's Bane the spell denied raise your blades... I've Not Yet Died!

thrice-king rose without sound took his stance, held the ground foemen fell from mortal wound others bled stumbled swooned til thirteen dwarvelords came with arrows spears took aim cowards fell the brave duke thus honor they forsook

the battle quit, bridge lay red with raven wine from myriad dead treasure wasted armies fled bloodswans songs brought dread bloodstorm ends with many slain corpses burned, across the plain O'er the blood fest ravens play fast fried heroes...have it your way!

Even comes & battles ends armies leave, once foes, now friends all dead rise head home
some to camp, some to roam to beer & mead & songs to spouses, to cheering throngs!
So Let Us join in beery toast to a thousand-weight of dread pot roast!

SONNET 112

by William Shakespeare

Your love and pity doth th' impression fill,
Which vulgar scandal stamped upon my brow,
For what care I who calls me well or ill,
So you o'er-green my bad, my good allow?
You are my all the world, and I must strive,
To know my shames and praises from your tongue,
None else to me, nor I to none alive,
That my steeled sense or changes right or wrong.
In so profound abysm I throw all care
Of others' voices, that my adder's sense,
To critic and to flatterer stopped are:
Mark how with my neglect I do dispense.
You are so strongly in my purpose bred,
That all the world besides methinks are dead.

Shakespeare
